"The packing was thrown in loosely."

"How many linear feet of the tunnel did this class of work apply to?"

"I should say pretty nearly 2,000 feet."

"Now, as to the packing above the arch?"

"In some places it was thrown in loosely, in some places it was not put in at all."

"When it was filled in lousely, how were the

"Just tossed in without mortar."

"Was any mortar used?"
"There is not twenty feet of 'straight' work in the whole two thousand feet!"
"What proportion of this two thousand feet has packing of any kind above it?" Extent of the Shoddy Work. "I cannot say, for the shoddy work extends all along the line. There have been certain portions of the work where I was afraid the arch would fall in, because of there being insufficient packing behind the side walls." "Now, as to that portion of the tunuel west of Rock Creek; how about the packing back of the side walls?"

"Well, O'Brien, the inspector, once ordered us to use the rough-stone mortar in laying the brick, but we refused and threatened to leave the work, so he revoked the order and we used good mortar."
"Why did you refuse to use this mortar?"

"Simply because we could not have done creditable piece of bricklaying. There could have been rough places and irregular have seen one thing after another showing a most bitter and hostile feeling loward this country on the part of the United States. Only this very evening came a telegram from Washington saying that Mr. Cleveland is going to issue his retaliation proclamation.

"Let him do it. I have every faith in Canada. We have the country and the people, and we can hold our own. All that is necessary is for us to be true to ourselves. I am sorry to see that some of us have no confidence in the future. I hope our volunteers will mark these traitors in this country and put them in the rear when trouble comes. I do not like to see letters in our papers advocating annexation. It is nothing but rank treason."

Col. Denison continued by repeating that Mr. Cleveland was trying to provoke Canada and Great Britain to war and calling on all loyal Canadians to be ready for it.

Joseph Tait, a prominent hiberal, made a speech attacking Col. Denison. He clauned that every man who favored the annexation of Canada to the United States was perfectly entitled to entertain his opinions, and also to preach them publicly.

Tait and others then left the banquet amid cheers and counter-cheers. Col. Denison, as police magistrate, is under the central of the provincial government, which is laberal, will reprimand or dismiss him.

of the politicians in and out of office agree that President Cleveland's action in giving Lord Sackville his conge was not only perfectly proper, but, indeed, the only thing he could do in the circumstances, the affair has caused a general murmur of dissatisfaction with the manner in which the Minister was dismissed. The mutterings proceed chiefly from a desire to conceal the universal feeling of charge.

Nor are the growls altogether directed toward the American Government. While it is freely charged that Mr. Cleveland has exercised his official prerogative in his own personal interest with a view of making party capital and influencing his re-election, a considerable proportion of the press and the people are disposed to lay the blame for England's humiliation at the door of Lord Salis-land's humiliation at the door of Lord Salis-bury.

It is claimed that when the effect of Lord Sackville's indiscreet conduct made it appear that the British Minister's departure from Washington in consequence was inevitable, the premier should have recalled him at once, in order that the spectacle of the peremptory dismissal of a British representative by the Government to which he was accredited might be averted.

That Lord Salisbury was perfectly well aware from the outset that Lord Sackville could no longer remain in Washington as the representative of Great Britain there can be no doubt whatever, and the opinion is openly expressed that he purposely exposed the unfortunate Minister to the humiliation which The National Jockey Club's races were continued to-day.

E.g., lish popular indignation against a country 3,000 miles away isn't such a terrible thing after all, but in the absence of any more potent means of retaliation, it was possibly thought well to manufacture and use it.

The Most Disappointing Part quantity of popular indignation produced is exceedingly small and most of it is directed against those who could, if they would, have spared England her present humilitation. The Post this morning has a leading edi-torial on the Sackville incident in which it

The loss of several seats within the last year has frightened some of the more fluid of the tories into the belief that the handwriting is upon the wall and even the stoutest-hearted ones see the necessity for prompt and vigorous measures to prolong the party's official life.

As a means of convincing the people that the conservative party by its action in Ireland had averted disaster to the country in the shape of wholesale murder, arson, etc., the Parnell Commission was thought to be a God send, but the rulings of that body on the admission of a certain flue of testimony and the growing weakness of the Times against the Parnellites have destroyed their reliance upon that method of making party capital and set the government's adherents to casting about in new fields.

A TERRIBLE FIRE IN AN OHIO TOWN.

A Scene of Panic and Fright-No Lives

Toledo, Nov. 1 .-- A special to the Bee, from Bowling Green, Ohlo, gives the particulars of a most disastrous fire there early this morning, by which a hotel, two printing offices and many other buildings were totally consumed. About 2 o'clock an slarm of fire was sounded and the fire department located the fire in Mescher's bakery, on Main street, from where it soon communicated to Kramer & Chancy's agricultural implement room, and in a short time the entire side of the street, including the Ross House, was a seething mass cluding the Ross House, was a seething mass of flames.

Before the fire could be checked it had communicated to adjoining business blocks, and the Sentinel office was completely gutted, as was also the Gazette office, together with a large number of stores.

Natural gas soon began to escape from pipes in the various buildings, and added fuel to the flames. So far as known no lives were lost. The loss cannot at present be estimated, but will be vary large.
